

Science Matters to Alabama

Alabama's Research Universities

Learn about the work being done at some of the major research universities in Alabama:

Alabama A&M University

Auburn University

Tuskegee University

The University of Alabama

The University of Alabama at Birmingham

The University of Alabama in Huntsville

Follow the latest on research in Alabama:

@UABUGResearch

Federally Funded Research in Alabama

Federal funding for scientific research reaches every state in the nation. See the impact of funding to organizations in Alabama from three of the major government research agencies:

National Institutes of Health:

In FY2016, organizations in Alabama received 654 awards from NIH, across all of its institutes, totaling $294,964,217.

National Science Foundation:

In FY2016, organizations in Alabama received 175 awards from NSF, across all of its programs, totaling $45,962,000.

Department of Energy Office of Science:

In 2015, educational institutions in Alabama received research awards from the DOE office of Science worth $2,925,267.

Companies Created from Research in Alabama

HaloSource is a global clean water technology company that develops and manufactures products and out-licenses proprietary technology for the water treatment and antimicrobial coatings markets. It is based on the federally funded work of Auburn University researcher S. Davis Worley.

Learn about more companies created from federally university funded research here.